CONNECTING LOCAL CHANGEMAKERS WITH EUROPE

● ● ● In Berlin, thousands of young Europeans from all over the continent are volunteering for causes close to their hearts. With the support of the State Chancellery of Berlin, we invited 20 of these young changemakers to experience Europe in a way they never had before.

MeetEU brought them to the continent's largest democracy festival, the European Youth Event. Besides exchanges with Members of Parliament, they also got first-hand tips on how to use EU resources to level up their engagement from the local to the European level – and beyond.

I CONCEPTION AN EVERYDAY EUROPE

For nearly all changemakers, it was the first time getting in close touch with the European Union. That is why we developed a low-threshold, participatory, and new concept. What does this mean in practice? Understanding the EU basics while cooking together with a group of peers, for example.

MeetEU connected non-formal learning methods, such as cooking discussions, with formal ones like presentations. Our objective: Aligning the experience of the EU to the everyday lives of the young volunteers.

Besides informing the young changemakers about the European Union, we also aimed to provide a space for networking, both within the group and with internationals such as local French volunteers in Strasbourg or European Youth Event Participants, as well as public figures such as members of parliament or high-level civil servants.

Last but not least, the project was led and accompanied by young MeetEU team members aged between 17 and 32. This created an eye-to-eye level base for direct feedback between MeetEU and the participants, enabling the young change makers to shape their experience.

PARTICIPANT TESTIMONIALS

Events were totally empowering and inspiring. My favorite part is probably “meaningful connections” to people and the workshops I visited.

“
I enjoyed the events and the trip. I think it was well organized, and everyone involved was very helpful when questions arose.

“
The cooking event on the first evening was a great way to meet everyone in a relaxed atmosphere and helped us connect quickly

“
I loved all the activities, which we had together, like Flammkuchen eating or meeting with MEP. The most favourite part was travelling with all activities

PERFOMANCE INDICATORS

KPI #6

92% made experiences useful for their activities in Berlin.

KPI #7

33% took place in an empower Workshop of the European Youth Event

METHODOLOGY

All participants were invited to fill out an anonymous survey directly after the journey. Twelve have responded to the questions, on which the results above were calculated. The KPIs were defined in the original project design. Additional face-to-face feedback conversations took place, but were not included in the calculation.

TAKE-AWAYS

Due to the late registration of our travel group, most of the workshop places were already taken, and participation in "Empower" workshops was therefore no longer possible for everyone. That is why the actual participation rate in this category of workshop was lower than aimed for (KPI#7)

CLOSING REMARKS

The Project “Berlin goes #EYE25” gave something back to those who dedicate their time to the common good. It enabled young people - many of whom with limited resources - to explore the democratic foundation of the European Union. We are convinced that the encounters made in Strasbourg and friendships forged between the participants will result in a positive impact for Berlin and Europe.
